Emerging Designer Spotlight: MAXFOWLES

 Max and Parisa Fowles are all about fusion. Their emerging label, MAXFOWLES is a combination of their names. Max, a global traveler, taking his influences from architecture and Parisa, an international style setter came together to create the line by merging their worldly influences and sophisticated aesthetic. At its core, their debut collection introduces fresh looks for their well-traveled, cosmopolitan woman. Taking European elegance with a New York inspired flair, MAXFOWLES creates and undeniably sultry line that is "based on values of craftsmanship, perfect detailing and understated luxury" which can surely be seen throughout.

This season tells a black and white color story with gray and off-whites sprinkled in. Their signature, quilted diamond stitched leathers shape the collection. You'll see it on patches placed on a range of denim, dresses and to-die-for skirts and jackets. The line also consists of chic blouses for refined simplicity and some looks that are bit posh like their top with fur sleeves and gorgeous leather halter dress. Each piece is wearable right now, but are also timeless for any dynamic woman.

For fall, the line has been picked up at Revolve Clothing and Elyse Walker. You can learn more about this made in the USA label at MAXFOWLES.
