The White Stuff

WARM UP WITH THE SEASON'S HOTTEST COLOR.

Wearing white after Labor Day has a long history as one of the better-known fashion faux pas; but, as it appears in the world of modern fashion, compliance is often overruled to give way to creativity by any means necessary. While stark white still is better suited for the rays of the spring and summer sun, the trick to wearing this hue befittingly during winter is mixing tones and textures. Shades of crème, ecru or ivory are stunning on cashmere, silk and wool, while generous splashes of crimson, gold or even chocolate can add a luscious finish.
